Solomon Islands First Issue

By Kurt Streepy Originally Published in First Issues www.firstissues.org

I am working towards an exhibit on the Solomon Islands first issue. The issue is commonly known as the large canoe issue to differentiate it from the second issue known as the small canoe issue. I'll let you determine how the names came about. While researching the postcard in figure 1, I found information on the Loose Ship Letter marking.

It is a 26 x 22 mm oval with serifed capital letters and was struck on uncancelled stamps posted on board ships arriving at Brisbane, Queensland.¹ Basically, a Paquebot letter that was not cancelled on the ship before landing in Brisbane. This is 1 of 5 large canoe covers reported with this marking.

Return address is the Roman Catholic Mission English New Guinea (now Papua New Guinea). In 1908 the area was known as the Territory of Papua being administered by Australia based on the passage of the Papua Act of 1905 which transferred authority from England. The Solomon Islands are the eastern neighbor of Papua New Guinea.

The Missionaries of the Sacred Heart was founded in 1885 on Yule Island. This is likely the source of the card. The mission was successfully led from 1900 to 1908 by Bishop Henry Verius. Appears the card is notifying someone in Switzerland of the sender's arrival.

I would appreciate any further information anyone can discern from the card or markings. I'm also looking for other good examples on covers/cards along with reference material for this issue if anyone has anything to share.

History of New Years Day

January 1st is considered New Years Day in today's society. But this is a fairly new concept because up until the time of Julius Caesar, the Romans celebrated the New Year in March because it was the first month in the Roman calendar. However, January 1 marked the time when the Romans changed their governmental figures and new consuls were inducted into office. And, they had games and feasting to help celebrate the new officials. But, they still used March 1 as their official mark of the new year and had a festival to their god, Mars (God of War).

It was Caesar who changed the Roman New Year's Day to January 1 in honor of Janus, (God of all beginnings and gate keeper of heaven and earth). Janus was always depicted with two faces: One looking back to the old year (past) and one looking ahead to the new year (future). One of the customs in the festival honoring Janus was to exchange gifts and then make resolutions to be friendly and good to one another.

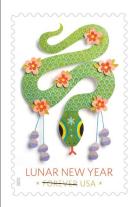

When Constantine ruled the Romans and accepted Christianity as their new faith, they kept the Festival of Janus as the New Years Day (Not March as before) and turned it into a day of prayer and fasting and not parties etc. It was a day for all good Christians to turn over a new leaf. However, the Romans may have accepted January 1 and Janus as the New Year, but many did not accept the turning over a new leaf, prayer and fasting part of it.

However, even in 1582, Great Britian and the English colonies in America still kept March for the beginning of the year. (Spring as a beginning?) It wasn't until 1752 that Britian (and it's colonies) adopted the new Gregorian calendar and January 1 as the beginning of the year. But many Puritans in New England felt Janus was an offensive pagan god and chose to simply ignore January 1 as a New Years Day. Instead they just made the entire month of January as "The First Month" of the months.

And, today no one really considers January 1 a fasting day. Ironically, for many it is a major day of feasting on junk food and watching football games on television.
